Horse Crazy Cowgirl Band is a fresh and rare western trio. A rich harmonic tapestry is the first thing that draws audiences into a Horse Crazy performance. The West comes alive with unique soothing harmonies which bring a new voice to folks who are interested in a love of land. The music itself is varied and new with original compositions that offer a taste of The West as it is today. Heart strings are plucked by the finger-picking folk arrangements, and toes tap with traditional western swing selections. Horse Crazy Cowgirl Band has created an unmistakable sound and is leaving an indelible mark on the frontiers of Western Music.

Horse Crazy Cowgirl Band has been playing since 2000, performing all over the United States and Canada, with five albums to their credit. The group's newest recording, "My Horse Knows The Way Home" is their latest and most diverse album. This collection hit #2 on the Top 20 Cowboy/Western Music playlist and is receiving critical acclaim. Recently the band performed for WoodSongs Old Time Radio Hour, airing on over 500 NPR and PBS stations nationwide.

Lauralee Northcott is bass player, vocalist and songwriter. Jennifer Epps is vocalist, and plays harmonica and percussion. As the newest member of Horse Crazy, Kristyn Harris yodels like a dream and plays swing guitar to match! Though a Texan, she is British Columbia's Rising Star of the Year, 2011.

You will be thrilled with the sound Horse Crazy brings to any event! Horse Crazy is dedicated to enriching the lives of people through their music and engaging as many young people as possible so the legacy of Western Music lives on.
